

Bova's ACETYLCYSTEINE RETENTION ENEMA KIT

“

Meconium impaction is a common cause of colic in neonatal foals... Some cases fail to respond to front line therapy; in such cases the use of an Acetylcysteine retention enema has been described with good success rates*

”

Kit contains:

200ml of 4% Acetylcysteine (Buffered with  $\text{NaHCO}_3$ )
1 x 26Fr. Catheter 40cm with 30cc balloon.

For pricing please contact
Bova Compounding.

DOWNLOAD THE LATEST
PRICE LISTS ONLINE AT
BOVAVET.COM.AU

*Pusterla, N., Magdesian, K., Maleski, K., Spier, S. J. & Madigan, J. E. Retrospective evaluation of the use of acetylcysteine enemas in the treatment of meconium retention in foals: 44 cases (1987–2002). Equine Vet. Educ. 16, 133–136 (2004). B. Sykes BSc BVMS MS Dip ACVIM Dip ECEIM MBA. The products in the Enema Kit are available as a complete kit or separately

**The medication advertised in this flyer is a compounded product and is available only upon prescription by a licensed veterinary practitioner. This flyer is intended for distribution exclusively to licensed veterinary practitioners and may not be re-circulated. If you are not a licensed veterinary practitioner, you must disregard this flyer. This flyer advertises the compounding service provided by Bova Compounding. Bova Compounding is a licensed compounding pharmacy and does not provide veterinary advice. Dosage and administration remain the responsibility of the prescribing veterinary practitioner.

Prices are ex-gst. Postage costs applies. Prices are subject to change.