

Another successful John Chopin Repro Boot camp for Veterinarians

Thanks to sponsors such as Bova Compounding, we are having a great time learning from one of Australia's leading educators in Equine Reproduction – Specialist Dr John Chopin!

We have veterinarians from Qld, NSW, NZ and Chile in attendance and all of them are totally immersing themselves in 8 days of Equine Reproduction fun lectures and practicals.

From collecting semen from a shire stallion, then going on to freeze the semen for long term storage and use, through to artificially inseminating mares to get pregnant using semen sent from over 500 km's away, these vets are getting a very intensive learning experience!

They all live and eat on site at EVDS, with lectures and practicals all done on site too. This means there is no down time, and any spare minutes in the day are used for socialising and relaxing! And with John loving the art and science of cooking, he is a fine chef on some nights as well, in between eating from local restaurants.

The ultimate success of the Repro Bootcamp comes from the small sized group whereby the vets get every opportunity to get maximal time for questions and explanations. And after lectures and cadaver prac's, they are able to work on the live horses with direct supervision from John.

Bookings for a seat for the next John Chopin Repro Boot camp are already coming in for the June 20-27 course, with a maximum of 6 registrants! For more information, contact EVDS at vets@evds.net.au
